A customer has an application that is being identified as unknown-top for one of their custom PostgreSQL database connections. Which two configuration options can be used to correctly categorize their custom database application? (Choose two.)

- A. Application Override policy.
- B. Custom application.
- C. Security policy to identify the custom application.
- D. Custom Service object.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Explanation

Unlike the App-ID engine, which inspects application packet contents for unique signature elements, the Application Override policy's matching conditions are limited to header-based data only. Traffic matched by an Application Override policy is identified by the App-ID entered in the Application entry box. Choices are limited to applications currently in the App-ID database. Because this traffic bypasses all Layer 7 inspection, the resulting security is that of a Layer-4 firewall. Thus, this traffic should be trusted without the need for Content-ID inspection. The resulting application assignment can be used in other firewall functions such as Security policy and QoS. Use Cases Three primary uses cases for Application Override Policy are:

To identify "Unknown" App-IDs with a different or custom application signature
To re-identify an existing application signature
To bypass the Signature Match Engine (within the SP3 architecture) to improve processing times
A discussion of typical uses of application override and specific implementation examples is
